The Other Side

By Scott Hope

"I'd like to know what sort of high handed pressure politics are being played on this campus? I'm speaking specifically of the published constitution which was passed by the Club Advisory Council at the close of last term. According to my information, all student organizations are expected to conform to these local requirements. This means purely local organizations and those national ones, under national constitutions, which the college has seen fit to accept and which have been willing to be represented here.

"All the national organizations at State have their own requirements, and, I believe, grant lifetime membership. Once in, you're in. Few, if any, receive student body financial support. All, I repeat, are under national constitutions. Why must national organizations submit themselves to local orders? Why not vice versa?

This innovation, among other things, requires that all members hold student body cards. If the student body office wants larger card sales, I suggest they give value received for the $6.50 plunked down, and not revert to pressure."

Signed: Sallie Golumb

Your letter, Sallie, brings out several good points, and has acted directly in bringing out several others. Perhaps the most vital point, and one that you missed, is this: Does the CAC have any authority AT ALL to dictate policy to ANY organization, on or off campus? This authority belongs with the Executive Board ALONE. The Executive Board has the right, in turn, to accept the requirements as suggested by the CAC, but it does not have the right to empower the CAC to carry out those instructions and to act as high executioner of clubs, organizations, or their policies and activities.

I also agree, in part, that a demand for a certain amount of freedom for national organizations is necessary, but, a check must be maintained on them. I cannot understand how an organization whose primary requirement is that of a religious belief, a hereditary culture or any deep-lying motive (veterans, etc.), should be required to have a student body card.

About making the student body card more attractive — that suggestion has been passed on to the exec board, and they are acting on it. It was pointed out to me that the benefits one derives from a SB card is indirect, i. e., the library, book store, cafeteria, Gater, etc. There are many functions that derive benefit from SB card money, and in turn, give much to the students.

During my tenure as Activities Commissioner, I was asked many times why certain social functions did or had not occurred. My successor will probably run into the same type of interrogation, and I

Dr. Leonard Attends Southern Meetings

Participating in three top educational committees of the State, President J. Paul Leonard has spent the past three days in Los Angeles. He will return to the campus Monday.

Last Wednesday Dr. Leonard sat with the California Committee for the Study of Education, representing the presidents of the six state colleges by appointment of Roy Simpson, State director of education.

Yesterday he represented the State Board of Education on the State Affiliations Committee, composed of representatives of the Junior Colleges Association, the University of California, the State High School Principals Association, and the State Board.

Today Dr. Leonard is representing the college in a joint session of the state college presidents and the State Board of Education.

Menzel Orates On Jackson Tonight

Dorothy Menzel, State student, who recently won honors in the Intramural Speaking contest, will speak tonight at 7:30 in the University of San Francisco Auditorium as a contestant in the Hearst Oratorical Contest.

Mrs. Menzel, who is speaking on Andrew Jackson, will tell the audience what she believes he would have to say on world problems if he were alive today.

In answer to Russian claims in Manchuria, British sentiment in India, the lack of cooperation of the United Nations Organization, and American loans throughout the world, Mrs. Menzel believes Jackson would say: "Let us as a nation make known our position in the world in clear, coherent, unflinching terms. Let us have no wishywashy diplomacy."

In conclusion Mrs. Menzel points out what a great help it would be to the people of today if we could only learn his way of "facing the magnanimous and the small with realism, sincerity, honesty and fearlessness."

FRANCISCAN PICS DEADLINE TUESDAY

Pictures for the Franciscan will not be taken after Tuesday, April 9, Etta Bucholtz, Franciscan assistant editor, announced this week. Photographer Tom King will be in the studio (Anderson 114) from 11 to 1 to photograph seniors and organization members who have not yet had pictures taken. Those who do not return proofs immediately will have their pictures chosen by the photography editor.

The yearbook deadline is April 15. It is expected to be distributed sometime in May. Last year's book may still be purchased in the student body office.

700 Students Receive Their Vaccinations

Approximately 700 vaccinations were given last week to students of the college through the Student Medical Seryice, according to Dr. Edna L. Barney, medical director. The majority of students proved to be immune, because of previous vaccination.

Anyone desiring a record of his vaccination may get a certificate from Dr. Barney.

Senior Grad Plans Initiated

Arrangements for the 1946 commencement exercises to be held on Friday evening, June 7, are now under way, according to reports from the office of Dean P. F. Valentine, vice-president of the college.

Dorothy Jane Reiners, Virginia Harris and Marc Gelles have been appointed by Ed Osorio, senior class president, to meet with Dean Valentine to select the valedictory speaker for the senior graduation.

The valedictorian will be chosen as a recognized representative of the class, on the basis of speaking ability and scholarship. The committee will be guided also by the desire to choose a student who has been prominent in student activities at the college.

Negotiations were begun in January to obtain the War Memorial Opera House for the graduation ceremonies but the management has withheld a contract because of the prior application of a New York operatic company for the use of the building.

"There are still strong hopes of obtaining the Opera House for the occasion," stated Dean Valentine. "If it does not prove available, application will be made for use of the Veterans Memorial Building."

Inklings Deadline Set For 4 p m Today

Student writers, today is your last opportunity to contribute to Inklings, State's student-written, edited and published magazine. Interested students may submit short stories, articles, essays, poems and plays to the editorial board of Inklings until the deadline at 4 o'clock today.

Set for publication in mid-May, this semester's issue will be greatly increased both in size and contributors. According to Gene Benefiel, co-editor, much copy has been received but there is still space for suitable material.

Copy is judged and selected for its originality, general interest and style of writing. Stories and articles should be typewritten, and should not exceed 1500 words.

Surplus issues of last term's publication are available at Betty Hickman's office, at ten cents per copy.

Music Fed Plans Picnic

Music Federation members and their guests will picnic at Fleishacker Zoo next Sunday afternoon, April 7.

A pot luck lunch will be the feature of the day, and those planning to attend should sign up in the Music Alley stating the delicacy they will bring.

Swimming, games, and strolling around the zoo will be on the agenda for the day's recreation. If it rains Sunday the group will go to Sutro's instead.

The picnic is a stag affair and those attending will meet at the end of the "L" car line at 11.

Also included on the agenda of the Executive Board were the Permanente Hospital plan, budget, post boxes and lockers, AVS constitution, and Scott Hope's resignation as Activities Commissioner.

Dr. Lastrucci and Mrs. Ellsworth, faculty members, and Phyllis Norin, Bob Harder, and John Chinn, members at large, were absent from the meeting. Ivor Calloway arrived late.

The proposal to adopt the Permanente Hospital plan of health for students was tabled, pending further investigation. President Johnsen suggested that the members of the board visit the hospital sometime within the next week.

President Johnsen read to the board a letter received from Dr, P. F. Valentine, Dean of the College, in which he stated that the Bookstore wished to be relieved of the responsibility of handling lockers and post boxes. Miss Sally Wilde, Bookstore manager, stated that the cost of upkeep for lockers and post boxes amounted to approximately $350 a year. Several suggestions were brought forth as to who should assume responsibility. At Dr. Arnesen's recommendation, the matter was placed in the hands of the Store council for investigation.

Hope Resigns

Scott Hope, Activities Commissioner, handed in his resignation. Ill health was stated as the reason for his withdrawal. Any student who wishes to put in an application for the job may do so by contacting President Meta Johnsen.

By-laws of the AVS constitution were passed unanimously. The vice-president, Bernice Bedwell, was instructed to straighten out the activities calendar in Dean Ward's office. The budget discussion was tabled upon the recommendation of Caroline Nahman, student business manager.

A. W. S. president Mary Jane Parker has announced plans for a rally to be held April 26, sponsored by the Associated Women Students with the possible aid of the Associated Men Students.

"Purpose of the rally," stated Miss Parker, "will be to orientate new students with the various campus clubs and organizations." Highlighting the affair will be a brief talk given by the president or representative of each group, explaining the work and purpose of his organization. Other forms of entertainment will also be presented.

Dr. Floyd Cave Publications Printed In Prominent Social Science Magazine

Many misleading ideas concerning the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics are prevalent today, according to an article by Dr. Floyd A. Cave, professor of social science, which appeared in the January 1946 issue of Social Science Magazine.

Entitled "Some Current Illusions Regarding the U. S. S. R.," the article shows how many of the radical theories of the Communist state, still used for purpose of propaganda, have become obsolete in practice.

Inadequate Information

"Illusions regarding plans and policies of the U. S. S. R. in the United States are largely the result of inadequate information, conflicts between doctrinal theories and actual practice and adverse propaganda," Dr. Cave stated.

"Clarification of such confused thinking is desirable in order to promote correct attitudes towards, and better understanding of, our great ally and neighbor on the part of the American public."

Other Publications

Among other recent publications by Dr. Cave are a chapter on church and politics in a book on "Twentieth Century Political Thought," published by the Philosophical Library, and three chapters on Russia and one on Europe, under German - Russian occupation, in a book on "Central-Eastern Europe," printed last month by Prentice-Hall.

Dr. Cave was recently appointed to the editorial staff of the Slavonic Encyclopedia, and is currently engaged in compiling data for the volume which is scheduled for publication in spring 1947.

Student Librarians Display Appalling Lack of Manners

Widespread annoyance on the part of many State students has been expressed at the extremely discourteous service given them in the school library of late. The major portion of the complaints stem from the older men, the veterans, who resent the patronizing and discourteous attitude of the student help behind "the cage."

Grievances Have Basis

The majority of these grievances would appear to have a definite foundation. The young ladies who are part-time librarians should realize that every student who asks for or takes out a book is in reality a customer of the library, just as these same students are the customers of the Co-op and Bookstore, and should be treated as such. Every Stater has purchased, upon registration, a part interest in the library and thus, has every right to expect decent, agreeable service—, which, at the moment, isn't being given!

Service Is Poor

Perhaps the wages paid the student librarians are too meagre and a cause for discontent. Perhaps there's too much to do for too few people. Or perhaps the girls just don't give a hang whether they do a good job or not. Whatever the reason, the service now is poor, and the student librarians, downright rude. Conditions should be corrected immediately.

The Co-op and the Bookstore are splendid examples of the right, the efficient, the courteous way of doing things. We suggest the library and many of its student librarians follow suit.

"Tomorrow Is Forever" Portrayed As Year's Most Stirring Picture

Upon rare occasions Hollywood produces a picture, that in comparison with its usual plethora of lush tripe, stands out like a choice jewel. The producers combine a profoundly emotional story with a superb cast, and add a director and crew that is worthy of the nucleus, and a movie such as "Tomorrow is Forever" is created. The story is a stirring one, yet within the pale of reason. It concerns a strong man, deeply in love with his young wife, who goes off to war and suffers severe wounds, barely managing to retain his life. Reticent to burden his wife with the shattered body he owns, he remains in Europe and commences a new existence. The wife, still in love with the supposedly dead husband, remarries, although the shadow of her first love never darkens. Another war is born two decades later and the ex-soldier returns to American as a chemistry specialist, and by chance comes into the precints of his former wife for a second time. The wife discovers his true identity, yet in the man's eyes a renewal of their life together is impossible.

Gems of Philosophy

The story is not only an excellent drama, but it contains a great many gems of philosophy, and is rich with human interest.

The picture stars Claudette Colbert and Orson Welles, both capable artists and in this particular moxie superb. Mr. Welles is especially outstanding for his work throughout the film.

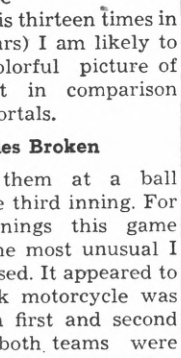
Rubin Wails At Spectacles

Of all the crutches that science has produced as an aid to souls who are not quite normal, that of eyeglasses is the most abominable to those who must wear them. Doctors tell me that I enjoy 20-500 vision, which that if I take them off I immediately require the service of a seeing-eye dog. So consequently when I break my spectacles (I have accomplished this thirteen times in the last two years) I am likely to get a rather colorful picture of my environment in comparison with normal mortals.



Spectacles Broken

Once I broke them at a ball game during the third inning. For the next six innings this game seemed to be the most unusual I had ever witnessed. It appeared to me that a black motorcycle was parked between first and second base, and that both teams were completely oblivious to this phenomenon. Occasionally the motorcycle would steer itself around to a different position in the infield, and again stand motionless. However at the finish of the game the machine, to all appearances ran itself into the grand stand and disappeared. It was not until I was in bed at night that I connected the motorcycle with the umpire.

I have walked the streets at night without glasses and turned completely rigid with fright when a monster with three headlights in the middle of its head suddenly materialized in the middle of the sidewalk. Upon warily crossing the street to the other side, and crawling forward until I was parallel with the monster, it amazingly transformed itself into a telephone pole.

Walking without my spectacles I can often see three lions casually approaching me. I sigh with relief as they turn into two chow dogs when I am ten feet away.

Horrible Awakening

I can waken in the middle of the night in a strange room and with the moon shining through the window, discover with horror two skunks lying in the center of the room, which upon replacing my glasses become my pair of saddle shoes.

It seems a shame to wear glasses and deprive myself of such a colorful existence.

On A Beautiful Blond, Seen From Afar

Poets were born to sing the praise
Of loveliness in lovely ways,
And often it did happen, true,
The lyric did the theme outdo
In rapt'rous beauty.

But how can this rude rhyme
compare,
With you who are so flawless, fair?
You need a Keats', a Virgil's eye,
To sing for you; but I will try,
As is my duty.

Unwelcome Sincerity

Lady fair
Do not wear
Your auburn hair
Fixed that way
If you please.

Time has fled
So far I've said
That they were dead
Let them lay
Those memories.

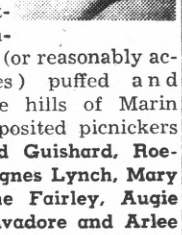
BLUM'S BULLSESSION Names 'N News

Come Hell, come High Water—the Music Fed, under Rita O'Neill's leadership, plans to stage its annual Spring picnic at Fleishacker's, Sunday—and a duck hunting contest will undoubtedly be a feature of the day . . . however, an ambitious gang of Fearless Fosdicks took to the woods last Sunday and held a rather damp get-together. A caravan of four cars (or reasonably accurate facimiles) puffed and wheezed to the hills of Marin County and deposited picnickers Izzy Pivnick, Ed Guishard, Roelene Shearer, Agnes Lynch, Mary Stoker, Lorraine Fairley, Augie Marino, Sal Solvadore and Arlee Fowlks high atop Muir Woods. There were others, but they, of course, are too busy sneezing to want to read their names in the paper.



Buchanan Banter

Of social note was Mrs. Olive Cowell's reception at her home of "modern design" last week where we met two relatively new young couples to State life: Mr. and Mrs. Colin Campbell and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Faulkner. Helping to Elsa Maxwell the deluge of guests was very blond, very blue-eyed Dolores Higbee . . . Notable at Gatorville is Bill Pedlar, who is one of the very few Pearl Harbor vets at school now . . . and we're told that Sigma Alpha Eta, one of State's top pre-war frats, will reorganize early next term . . . moving downtown for a minute to the hit musical "Oklahoma," we noticed that the orchestra looks very Statish with Cy Trobbe, Carl Modell, Phil Laspina, Hugo Rinaldo and Walter Borsella among the featured musicians . . . add musical interest: Dave Huenergardt, who vocalized at the recent Frosh Rally, has inked a contract to sing with Henry Busse under the name of Dave Gibson—at the Palace's Rose Room.

Haight Highlights

Mr. Harold Hollingsworth of Music Alley fame, will give a special concert for an all-colored audience in Oakland this Sunday. A packed house will hear him sing the famous "Elijah" . . . one of the youngest students to ever grace a College Hall classroom is 15 year old Patricia Thompson, who has already spent a year at Tuskegee Institute in Alabama . . . Dr. Sommerville Thomson's Spanish 2 class is probably the toughest one of 'em all as far as the hopes of the embryonic wolves are concerned. There's more Third Fingers, Left Handers there than you can shake a stick at—to name a few: Mrs. Janet Yaley, Mrs. Edith McCluggage, Mrs. Evelyn Savio, Mrs. Agnes Bond and Mrs. Virginia Steele . . . and, if you can, check the Three Jay's arrangement of "I'm In The Mood For Love" . . . it's tops! . . . Of the six offices in the AVS, three are held by the so-called weaker sex: Barbara Burch, Doris Hoffman and Wanda Kerr. The last named, Miss Kerr, was smothered with puckers at the Girl's Club (by men!) following her victory. . .

This N' That

Rage of the campus is Vern Mc Cormack's "no bigger than your finger" puppy, Tippy . . . back for a quick visit recently was Bob Rivers in Navy blues and Dario Cassina, ex Music Fed prexy, still a Marine, and soon to return to the Alley . . . George Skinner, a former member of Monty's famed British 8th Army, is now quietly taking his place in the life on the Hill after a hectic three years as an Infantryman with the 1st Canadian Division—Africa, Italy, Germany! . . . Under the guiding hands of Henry H. Hayes, a group will hold a half hour radio forum on April 20 on "World Peace from a Planned Education." Participants will be named next week . . . Two little ladies from Fresno State, Janet Adams and Bonnie Beeman, visited our "campus" last week and were positively amazed that grass grew here—in the heart of San Francisco! Ah yes, "How Green Are Our Alleys!"

TOM THORP Read The "Thrilling Case Of The "Peek-a-Boo Locker"

They say I am mad, but I am not. Read my story and judge for yourself.

It was registration week, and all the lockers were filled, so when a sombre, black-caped oriental offered to sell me his, I readily agreed. Trudging wearily along the echoing, cobwebbed corridors of Anderson Hall in search of my new home, a faint uneasiness came to my mind. It was dark and dank, and the wan afternoon sunlight filtered through the dust-covered windows with a macabre reddish hue.

Faint Noises

When I stopped in front of my locker, I seemed to hear faint noises from the adjoining cubicle, but the sounds ceased almost immediately. As I was leaving, I thought I detected them again, but on closer examination my fears seemed groundless and the neighboring locker commonplace except for a peculiar wax seal on its door.

Decision Reached

Next morning I noticed a small hole in the side of my locker which seemed to have been gnawed there! That was two weeks ago, and though I have avoided the vicinity as much as possible, I know that the hole is gradually enlarging. There is Something living in the locker next to mine!

Today I discovered that the wax seal is actually a replica of the Seal of Solomon, used by many oriental magicians to control the evil beings who serve them. This has convinced me! I shall gather up my book and leave that cursed spot forever, for if I delay, the Thing in the Locker will break through and be waiting for me some day when I open the door.

(The above manuscript was clutched in the hand of a grinning skeleton discovered accidently in an empty locker in a dusty, long deserted corridor deep beneath Anderson Hall).

ATTENTION VETS!

Mr. Charles C. Collins, Veterans' Counsellor, has office hours in room 111, College Hall from 12:30 to 3:30 p. m. Monday, through Friday. Consult him on any problem you may have.

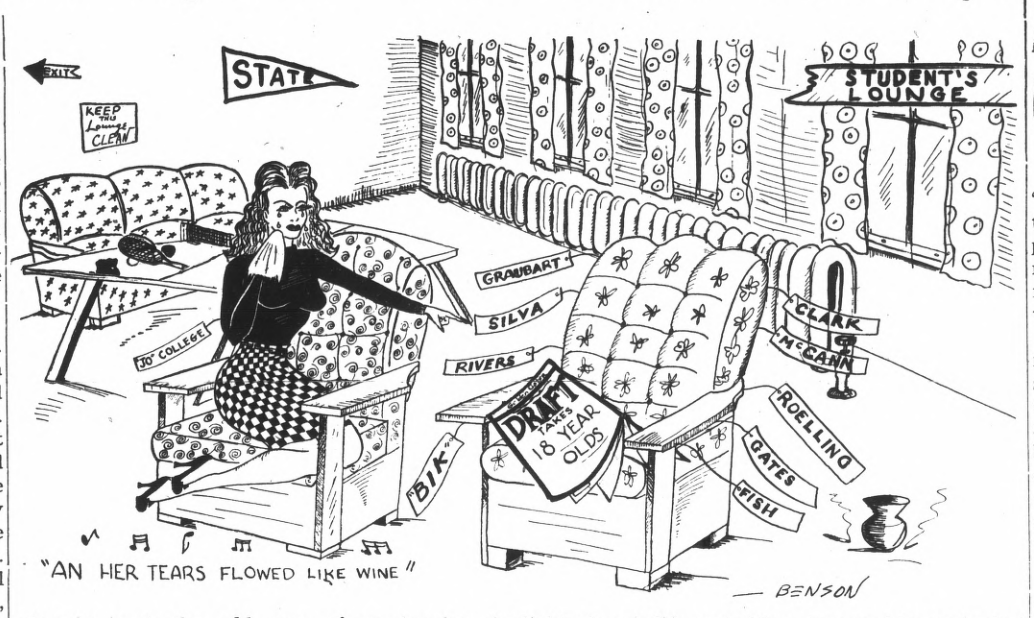
Let's Kiss The Eighteen Year Olds Goodbye

Carmel Healy

Four years ago it became necessary for the young men of this nation to leave their homes, jobs, and most of all, their women. I was very sorry about all this, of course, but I couldn't imagine why the women were taking it so hard. So the fellows do all the fighting, and the women stay home and moan about being brave until their honeys come home for good. There just ain't no justice.

Love Is Corny

Love, I said to myself, is nuts. It's corny. At the time I was a very juvenile child of thirteen and didn't appreciate men very much. Sometimes I wish I'd stayed that way. But now I have changed and find myself a woman whose life is being drastically affected by the peace. Peace, I said. This time tragedy has struck close to home. At last they have taken the real men, the backbone of the nation, the flower of manhood, the eighteen year old. To me, there is nothing as sweet and unsophisticated as a man of eighteen. He beats you over the head when he tells you he loves you but he doesn't mean it. He doesn't really love you. That's just his friendly little way of saying, "I'm not doing anything right now, let's go steady for the next two weeks." He's in between loving and hating girls. He still has that fiendish little love of twisting arms and breaking legs just for the heck of it. Make them suffer. Heh, heh. That's why he cracks your knuckles when he looks fondly into your eyes and dreams about the distant future when he is at the old age of twenty-five, and has thirty dollars so he can get married.



She Doth Remember

Uncle Sammy is returning lots of men to their homes and that makes a lot of people happy. Of course, it makes me happy, too. Now, maybe I can remember what my brothers look like if I see them once in a while. But that's brothers. . .

But what about me? What will I do when I walk into the Student Lounge and see his vacant chair where he used to play Pedro? How can I bear to gaze into my little dog's eyes and see reflected there, his haunting stare? Just what does one do when the light of one's life suddenly packs up his little toothbrush and is off for Camp Beale? Oh, what will I do without my little pork chop?

Misses His "Hello"

I'll miss the way he used to "hello" on foggy mornings; the cute way he used to growl when we'd meet in the halls and the way he had of looking over my head and staring at doorknobs whenever I approached. Could it be that he was avoiding me? Me? , Hmmm, could be. I used to count the days until he was gone—16, 15, 14, 13, 10, 7, 6, 5, 3, today! today—he's going—oh, no, not today—please, God, not today. But he went. I'll probably never see him again, but if only I could have just said, "Goodbye . . . goodbye darling . . . goodbye . . ."

There Comes A Time

Oh, well, there comes a time in every woman's life when she must choose between living, and the Bay Bridge. For the time being, I think I'll still keep on living. After all, I'm still young. Possibly Mr. Alexander would have an answer for this question. All right, do your stuff, what shall I do, Mr. Alexander? . . . No answer . . . Oh, well, I guess I'll go play checkers or something . . . until he comes back (not Mr. Alexander) . . . in a year and a half . . .

Science Claims That All Men Wolves Under The Skin

By Harry Karpilow

When the girl of today screams "You wolf!" little does she realize this is undoubtedly true, in a physical sense. And, little does she realize that she also might have a few cells from some prehistoric wolfess.

The conception that man originally was a fish or a monkey seems fantastic. And yet, if the theory is true that human beings are composed of cells which are but an infinite division of a single cell which originated millions of years ago, then undoubtedly we are still, in a sense, snakes or worms.

Climax Reached

Following this trend of thought, let us suppose that the physical advances of the present day human being suddenly reached a climax at the stage when he or she was in the form of an animal. Can you imagine grabbing some hairy feminine representative of the anthrapoid family and whispering "Geez, Babe, you send me!"

Some animals have physical advantage which man does not. What woman could resist if the man of today has as many hands as the octopus has tentacles. Wouldn't it be a wonderful world if every woman was speechless like the giraffe? Think how much more useful woman would be if she were like a cow!

Animal life also has its disadvantages. Can you imagine how the father of today would feel if the nurse came out of the maternity ward and said "You are the father of ten cute, squawling babies!" Imagine how many handkerchiefs a person would have to use if he had the proboscis of an elephant.

Biologists state that a less dense solution will flow through a permeable membrane to a denser liquid. This is called osmosis. I am going home to experiment. On the theory that my skin is a permeable membrane, I will drink a gallon of coca cola syrup. I will then climb into a bathtub filled with Scotch or Bourbon. I expect to get horribly intoxicated through the process of osmosis.

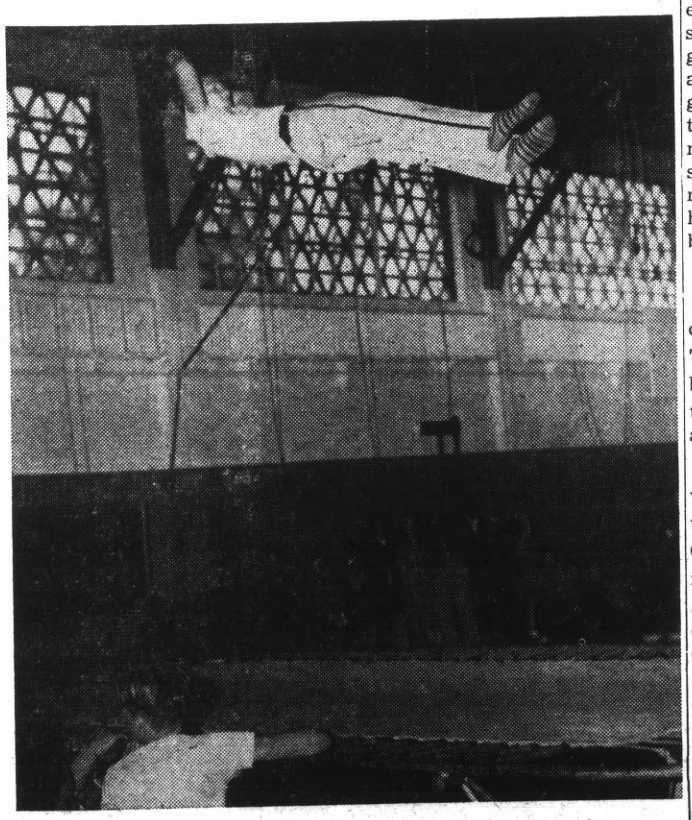
Ah, What Fools These Mortals Be!

By Art Blum

Keeping in mind the hectic, zany things that have happened during the last few months in and around San Francisco, the majority of "the faithful" here at State are facing the final months of the term with a mixture of both doubt and apprehension.

First there was the uproar over transportation — or lack of it — in St. Francis' slightly over-crowded village. From the stately dome of City Hall to the slightly frayed front steps of College Hall, the repercussions were felt — and acknowledged.

Since the students at Gatorville are of the democratic variety—and because most of 'em are broke, (and have you tried to buy a car lately?), they flocked to school every morning aboard the "City's Finest," the Municipal Railway's cracked 22, K, L, M, N, 7 and 17 limited. And they were limited! They were so crowded that conductors wouldn't dare punch transfers for fear they'd be sued for assault and battery. It was never safe for a co-ed to hold books close to her body. She'd come home that night to find Homer's "Iliad" tatooed all over her stomach! Upon reaching State, the average co-ed would emerge looking like a flat-iron!



Life at State seems to be on an amazingly high plane this term—as evidenced by the "jumping jack" exhibition put on at a recent Friday afternoon rally.

Main objection, of course, was that the cars were never on time. The smart student would quietly slip from his house at 4 a. m. and if he wasn't picked up for violating the curfew law, he'd usually make his 9 o'clock class on time!

Sinatra Has Effect Too

No doubt the appearance here of Frank Sinatra and Van Johnson totally wrecked the study schedules of all of State's teen-agers besides nullifying the effect of orientation courses where one learns to adjust and, at the same time, sublimate all emotions.

Frankie and Van do not lend to emotional sublimation. And besides, since nylons are still hard to get, being a "Bobby Soxer" has its advantages. Still, those lads have got "it," but if ever a sweet young thing of 18 screams at me "come to me Artie!", I'll be darned if I'd stand there calmly swinging on a microphone. No sir, I'd shout back hoarsely; "I hear you talkin', babe!"

An Ounce of Prevention

Biggest furor of the month was caused by the small pox scare. On Tuesday last, the entire student body made a concerted, wild dash to Dr. Barney's Needletorium for a bit of expert skin puncturing.

Sleeves were rolled up, jaws were set, arm muscles flexed—and then, Watson, the needle! After the Co-eds carried the athletes out feet first, life at State became normal again. Of course, a new style became fashionable. Everyone started wearing white tape on their arms, and to give the appearance of strength, many allowed their arms to even puff around the puncture!

But, as it must to all things, the scare came to an end when 'twas discovered that the case that caused the run on the serum was—of all things—chicken pox!

What Teachers Need Is A Sense of Humor

By Irv Thomas

"Above all a teacher should have a sense of humor." That's what it says in my English book (Harbrace Handbook, Page 142, Number 5, if you doubt my word.) My English book, mind you!! How many English teachers have you known who have a sense of humor? And by a sense of humor I don't mean the teacher who has his catalogue of stock jokes which he runs through every term to impress each new set of guinea pigs. Even stock jokes are tolerable occasionally, though, provided the profs don't lose track of which jokes they cracked in your class.

Someday, when I'm writing articles that people will read, I'm going to launch a campaign to require every teacher to pass a "Laugh I. Q." The examination, as I see it, would be on a competitive basis. Three candidates at a time would be seated around a circular table. At the click of a stop-watch each would begin telling jokes. The first to bring forth a laugh would receive his teacher's credential.

Professors Need Humor

Seriously, though, I believe that the lack of sense of humor is a basic characteristic of every unpopular teacher. I might even go so far as to say that lack of humor on a teacher's part has been behind a great many student failures. I can remember the amazing results on myself when luck finally favored me with an English teacher who could laugh—I passed!!! And I fairly soared through high school chem when I encountered an instructor who was actually funny.

"Oh, rubbish; bull!!" you future unpopular teachers are probably exclaiming by now. "Work is work, and play is play, and never the twain shall meet." Ahh, but you're wrong. Ever the twain shall meet. Man can't work wholeheartedly unless he can laugh whole-heartedly. In the really successful man work and play are interwoven and cannot be separated.

Teachers: Take Heed!

So take heed, aspiring teachers; try to give your pupils a break. When you've got twenty or thirty shining, hopeful faces gleaming up at you, don't make yourself out as a fellow who stopped living when he put on long pants (or knee-length skirts, as the case may be). Let the corners of your mouth turn upward, not droop.

Of course, don't overdo it. Surely you've heard of the teacher who tried so hard to crack a joke that the students all thought he was cracked. (Ouch! See what I mean.)

Tables Replace Booths In Co-op

Ten tables, originally obtained from the Langley Porter clinic and stored at the new campus for a year and a half, were rescued by the Co-op management and now replace booths in the cafeteria.

Surplus commodity linoleum will be purchased when obtainable to cover the floors, and chairs and tables will be painted. Display space available in the Co-op will be turned over to the Art Federation for decoration.

Stater Sports Slants

BY PAUL HUNGERFORD

Who's that character we see pacing up and down in front of the Co-op waving his arms madly? . . . why of course, it none other than muh sports boss . . . "Wild Bill" Kennerley. Poor Bill has been feeling pretty low since his old faithful sports scribe Scott Hope has turned news writer. No more will the old familiar Sport Dope by Scott Hope be seen in this hyar spot . . . well, not until they realize how much they really miss him. Best of luck in your new assignment, Scott!

Lemons to Downtown Newspapers

Before and after each game, the sport scribes send down their respective dope, and then what happens? Articles of considerable length are submitted, giving State due credit. Oh, boy . . . what happens to those articles should have happened to Hitler. All of them are cut to the barest minimum.

However, we must realize that State is bucking five local major colleges for publicity. If the Gators play and beat "major league" colleges we would then receive the space given to Cal, St. Mary's, etc.

Gators Get Galoshes

Last Saturday the track meet was rained out, and the only participants were three sea gulls, two slightly drowned worms and a six-year old equipped with sailboat and bathing suit. I wouldn't say it was wet, but the boys hadn't exactly planned to row the 440.

Have you noticed the sleepy look on Gil Solomon's puss lately? Well, it's his old State spirit showing. For the last few days the water at the new campus was turned off, and Gil, like a good manager, shagged aqua for the Gator cinder men to drink. But when the fellas asked about water for their showers, Gil said, "Tha's all."

Coach Dick Boyle is still looking for some club men. Let it not be said that the stoodentz of Buchanan Heights are not interested in sports . . . and golf is a sport, you know. Dick has planned a swell season and every true sportsman should go out and tee off against St. Mary's, Santa Clara and other rivals of "Ye olde campus."

Take Me Out to the Ball Game

Have you got the true State spirit? For the past few years the school tradition of turning out to games has gone to the dogs! In most local high schools you find about two-thirds of the student body out there rooting for the home team. On many occasions track meets and baseball games fall on the same day, but ten people witnessing the meet, and five at the ball game do not comprise one per cent of the student body So . . . if you're not working, come on out to the games and support the fellows who are trying to put State back on the map.

In 1941 and '42 Cal and Stanford were afraid to play us in basketball for fear of ruining their game averages. What say we make these so-called wonder teams sit up and take notice again?

Many thanks go to Ru Stone, former State track star, for his help in giving the "hamburgers" of the squad (like this scribe) a few pointers. Ru was known as the wonder man of State because of his ability to accumulate as many as 21 points in one meet. Thanks again, Ru!

To my surprise, I saw in the recent track meet none other than John Sheppard making a comeback in the hurdles . . . that isn't astonishing, but what is, is the fact that his kids were down there yelling, "Come on, Pop," and he did, too. John took first in the low's and second in the high's . . . not bad for a family man, huh?

Gator Growls and 'Grats

Growls . . . to the weatherman for fouling up the track meet and baseball game.

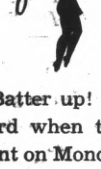
'Grats . . . to the plumber out at the new campus for installing the water pipes for showers . ..and letting Mrs. Solomon's little boy Gil get home for dinner!

Growls . . . to all Gatorville kids for not sending in the names of athletes into the "Gators at a Glance" column . . . (plug).

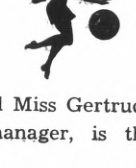
'Grats . . . to the Seal's for winning their first double-header with Seattle here in Seal's Stadium last Sunday.

Growls . . . to the Army for swiping Frank Pulizzi, short-stop for the Gator nine.

'Grats . . . to Betty Horton for organizing a riding group.



W. A. A.



By Lola Burton

Batter up! This will be the byword when the softball tournament on Monday and Tuesday gets under way. With spunky little Gloria Gamba acting as manager, the games should prove to be as popular as they have been in the past.

An event to look forward to will be the game between W. A. A. members and men of the P. E. department. Already such women as Carmel Mullin, Mary Falbo and Helen Hansen have been trying out their swinging power.

All equestrian enthusiasts are urged to sign up in the gymnasium for the newly-formed riding club held on Friday afternoons. Betty Horton is responsible for organizing the group and Miss Gertrude Luehning, co-op manager, is the sponsor.

P. E. ALUMNAE ASSOCIATION

An active Physical Education Alumnae Association, composed of graduates of San Francisco State, who were either members of the W. A. A. or physical education majors or minors, is being crystallized here this term. The purposes of the association are to encourage and support professional and recreational activities sponsored by physical education groups, to continue the social relationships formed during college days, to promote high ideal and standards in physical education and to provide scholarships for worthy students.

BASEBALL

Gators Meet JC Tuesday

The Gators will be after their 28th consecutive win from SFJC when they cross bats with their cross town rivals Tuesday at Ocean View field at 3:30 p. m.

Jaycee has never yet beaten State in a series that began in 1933.

Although originally scheduled to play San Jose State, the Gator nine will be idle tomorrow. The Spartans cancelled the State game due to a conflict in schedule. They are committed to play COP in a league encounter.

NEW CATCHER

Stew Saunders has now been added to the State catching staff, and is expected to break into the line-up, sharing back-stop duties with Mel Martin and Ed Pittson.

Irv Edstrom, who chucked a five-hitter against the Presidio Army earlier this week, will probably throw for the Gators. Satchel Dials, former Commerce Hi all-city choice, or Johnny Babbit, will throw for the Rams.

The remainder of State's line-up will probably be Gene Cox, 1b; Herb Bill, 2b; Chuck Damonte, 3b; John Nicolini, ss; Bob Jones, lf; Armand Quartini, cf, and Red Dunn, rf.

SAN MATEO THURSDAY

Thursday the Gators travel down the peninsula to San Mateo to play the local junior college. In their first game of the season, State won from San Mateo 8 to 4.

Dunn will hurl for the Gators, being opposed by John Marcus or Bill Murphy.

EDSTROM WINS

Gators Beat Army Team

Two hits apiece by Bob Jones and Herb Bill paced San Francisco State to a 5 to 1 victory over the local Army nine at the Presidio Tuesday. Irv Edstrom hurled the first eight innings for the Gators, striking out eight and allowing but five hits.

Jones and Bill scored in the sixth when Tobi Komatsu booted Mike Marcoulis' grounder, and Joe Nicolini singled in the eighth to drive in Jones and Aimee Hourcade, sewing up the game.

Jones and Edstrom engineered a double steal, enabling Edstrom to score the Gators' first run in the third inning. Jones overran second and was thrown out in a rundown.

The Army scored their lone run in the sixth when Biska's single brought in Komatsu, who had singled, and advanced on a fielder's choice.

Tennis Coach Dan Farmer reported the arrival on campus of Sockalov, who will hold down the number two slot on the team as soon as he registers and becomes eligible to play .

INTRAMURAL FLASHES

By Tom Thorp

Plans are being made by the intramural activities class for a men's volley ball tournament to take the place of the softball league games which end today. The ping-pong and tennis tournaments are still quite a bit behind schedule, even though they are approaching their halfway marks.

The volley ball tournament will be held in the Rally Bowl and the women's gym, getting under way soon after April 15, when the sign-up will end. All classes and organizations are invited to participate in the league, although the first obligation of all men will be to play with their respective P. E. classes. Sign-up cards can be obtained from any men's P. E. instructor.

PING PONG

With the re-opening of the Student Lounge, the ping-pong tournament has entered its closing stages. Play in the men'ssingles has advanced to the quarter finals, with Joe Woolfson playing Bud Wendt; Mark Gelles taking on Scott Hope and John Holden drawing a bye.

In the women's singles the first round has been completed, with Rosemary Wallace, Mary Falbo, Billie Cohn, Lila Rose and Barbara Agel victors.

TENNIS TOURNEY

First round play in the tennis tournament is still continuing, although the quarter finals were scheduled for this week. So far only four matches have been played, with Bob Reeves, John Holden, Bob Seiler and Mark Gelles winners.

Mudders Win, Tie; Title Game Today

The Mudders and Junior Gators battled to a 3 to 3 tie Monday in the intramural league. The two clubs played again Tuesday, with the Mudders winning 3 to 0 to finish in first place in the American division.

The Tumblers, National division winners, play the Mudders on the upper field at 12:15 today for the intramural championship.

Tickets For Term Play On Sale Next Week

Tickets for the term play, "Man and the Masses" by Ernst Toller, to be presented April 15, 16, and 17, will be on sale daily from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m., all next week in the Co-op. Prices are 75 cents for student body members and 85 cents for others, according to Edmund Reynolds, business manager.

— After a rehearsal with the entire cast last Monday night, Miss Carolyn Silverthorne, director, said, "The play is progressing nicely, and promises to be an outstanding event for State."

Leading roles are taken by veteran actors and actresses such as Margaret Shearer, Allen Hummel, James Haran, Shirlee Graubart and Mary Meniktos.

Norman Barish is working with Charles Autry, Bonnie Buoncristiani, Lewis Fosse, John Morange and Edmund Reynolds in creating the choregraphic movements for the bankers' scene, one of the fantasies in the play.

Much of the art work is being done by Charles Autry and his assistant, Paula Moffit. Glenn Jackson, stage manager, is working on effective lighting patterns.

Noted Educators Join Summer Session

Among the prominent names appearing in the 1946 summer session program, is that of Mrs. Lorraine Sherer, who at present is completing work for her doctor's degree at Stanford University.

Mrs. Sherer, an outstanding educator from southern California, will join the staff of the workshop in elementary education during the summer session. She has previously attended both the University of Chicago and the University of Southern California, and is a member of Phi Kappa Phi, Delta Kappa Gamma and Pi Lambda Theta, honorary societies. Mrs. Sherer is the author of various books, including "Their First Years in School," and "Studies of Industrial Life."

Dr. Joseph Roucek, an educator of national prominence and well-known to recent summer session attendants, will also join the summer session faculty. Dr. Roucek, a lecturer of national reputation, is

The dinner plans were formulated at the regular meeting last week, which was highlighted by the showing of a South American travelogue.

Prices for this evening's dinner range from $1.50 to $2.50, according to Peter Weiss, club president.

Freeburg To Teach At U. Of Oregon

Mr. Roy Freeburg, associate professor of music, has been invited to teach at the Portland summer session of the University of Oregon which will begin about the middle of June.

Mr. Karl Ernst, former member of the music faculty at State and now director of music in the Portland public schools, recommended Mr. Freeburg for the assignment. Last spring Mr. Freeburg was choral consultant for the Portland high school a cappella festival.

P. A League Dinner Tonight

A dinner, sponsored by the local chapter of the Pan-American League, will be held tonight at 7 p. m. in the Papagayo Room of the Fairmont hotel. Members and their guests are invited.

Hacker Announces Geog Field Trips To Lassen, Yosemite

Beginning this semester, students taking Geography 101 will receive two units of credit instead of one, according to Dr. Walter Hacker, chairman of the social science department and director of geographical field work.

Field trips every other Sunday and one hour lectures each Friday at noon are included in the course. Each student is required to attend six of the field trips.

Last semester because of transportation difficulties trips were restricted to the coast range. Nearby points were visited and minerals, rocks, and native plants specimens were collected. During the present semester excursions in the Sierra Nevada range will be made. Tentative plans include week-end trips to Mt. Lassen and Yosemite.

The emphasis of study in the course depends on the location visited; the historical development of the landscapes from prehistoric to Indian, Spanish and Anglo-American is discussed by the class. The evolution from native vegetation to present day flora is studied by members of the class.

Topographical maps which explain and describe the geological contour of the area are read and interpreted by the students.

I. R. C. Outlines Plans For Broadcast April 20

At a recent International Relations Club meeting Vince O'Leary outlined plans for a radio broadcast in which several members of the organization will participate. Scheduled for Saturday afternoon, April 20, on Station KQW, the round table discussion to be presented will emphasize educational and cultural influences on the United Nations.

The committee working on the program and speeches are: Vince O'Leary, Lou Rubin, Beverly Martin, Glenn Jackson, Marne Camp, Pearl Glaser, Dick Leland and Henry Hayes.

The radio script and plans for the half hour broadcast will be presented to members at the next meeting, Monday noon.

Co-op Members Study Eastbay Co-op Techniques

Staff members of the Co-op made a tour last Tuesday of co-operatives in the east bay region. Conducted on tour by Larry Collins of the Northern California Associated Co-ops, were Heinz Graalfs, Carolyn Nahman, Johnny Oakes, Frank Shaw and John Mitchell.

Co-ops at the University of California visited included the Oxford dormitory which has a central kitchen that supplies five othr co-operative dormitories. In the opinion of the party, these were good examples of college co-operatives.

State students were then conducted to a co-operative warehouse, and shown the grading systems. They were then taken to hardware, gasoline and grocery co-ops.

Organize Music Workshop for Summer Session

Plans for the ninth annual Music Workshop this summer have been announced by Mr. Reginald C. Krieger, director. The Workshop, held every summer at the college, provides excellent opportunities for young musicians of elementary and high school age. Instrumental instruction as well as practice in band, orchestra, a cappella choir, small ensembles, music theory, harmony, and appreciation are offered. This year the Workshop will also feature modern dance, arts and crafts, operetta workshop, drama, journalism, and radio.

The faculty includes regular faculty members of the music department, most of whom are members of the San Francisco Symphony.

The Workshop will be divided into two divisions; the junior division for students in the fifth, sixth, and seventh grades, and the senior division for students of junior and senior high school levels.

The Music Workshop will be closely coordinated with the program of the regular college summer session and will be open from June 24 to August 2.

THE OTHER SIDE

would like to make the load a little easier for him or her by clarifying the duties and functions of the AC. The AC is to serve as chairman of the Activities Council "and shall be entrusted with the administration, regulation, and supervision of all the enumerated associations as to their activities, finances, and proceedings . . . " By tradition the AC handles rallies, also, but he does not have anything to do with night socials! The members of the Activities Council are the Women's Athletic Association, Men's Athletic Association, debate, dramatic, art, and music organizations. NO OTHERS! So, do not blame the AC for the failure of a dance. Night affairs are the responsibility of the vice-president of the student body.

A. V. S. Acts To Probe Tardy Pay; Names Liaison Men For Vet Groups

Committee reports, a resolution to urge rapid action in the expediting of subsistence checks, and appointment of members to act as go-betweens between other veterans' organizations, featured the regular meeting of the Associated Veteran Students last Tuesday, according to Marne Camp, president.

Camp explained that all committees had been regrouped under three principal ones—welfare, academic and social affairs — each headed by an officer of the association.

Welfare Report

Bob Stefanou, administrative vice-president and chairman of the welfare committee, made a general report on housing, transportation and employment. The chairmen of these sub-committees, Jim Burnside, Dexter Pike and Don Burch, reported that they had found transportation for east bay residents, apartment vacancies, and that jobs had been found for several veterans.

Barbara Burch, corresponding secretary and head of the academic committee, reported on the progress of the tutoring committee.

Social Committee

Bill Dennis, vice-president and head of the social and sports committee, summarized progress in that line, and with Charles Guichard, discussed plans for a party at some future date which will not interfere with other student body activities. Dennis also pointed out that Phil Doran, of the sports committee, had started plans for a rifle team and a flying club. Doran, who was a flight instructor in the Navy, and Jerry Colombi, have already signed many members for the flying club.

It was also decided to amend the constitution so that the election of new officers would take place at the close of the semester, in accordance with the recent ruling of the Club Advisory Council. Publicizing of intent to amend, as provided for in the AVS constitution, is being done this week.

A resolution was adopted asking the AVS officers to investigate the delay in receiving subsistence checks from the Veterans' Administration.

Liaison Officers

Members were appointed to act as official go-betweens to the various veterans' organizations. These men will keep AVS informed as to what these organizations are doing for student veterans. Those appointed are Charles Guichard to act as liaison man with the American Veterans Commission, Bill Dennis with the American Legion, Phil Torly with the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and Oscar Durand with the Disabled American Vets.

The next meeting, at which time the constitutional amendment will be brought up, will be held next Tuesday at 11 o'clock in room 210 in Anderson Hall.

"So far the functioning of the committees has been excellent," said Camp, "and it is hoped that more men will volunteer for service on these committees. It is our wish that every member of the organization will take a part in the running of AVS, and the officers' work be confined to co-ordinating the various activities."

C. A. C. Sets Club Standards

Suspension of clubs that do not measure up to prescribed standards was discussed last week at a regular meeting of the Club Advisory Council

Doris Hoffman, president of the council, succeeded to that position on the drafting of Hy Bik, with Myrtle Burgess stepping in as vice-president and secretary to succeed Miss Hoffman.

Miss Hoffman said that each club must have a charter to function as a part of the college, and to keep that charter each organization must have a representative at the CAC meetings, and must submit to the CAC a club calendar and a list of members.

Certain standards were also set as to membership and office-holding. Each member of any organization must be a member of the Associated Students, and each club officer must maintain at least a C average.

"Failure to do any one of these things will cause the charter to be revoked," said Miss Hoffman, "and suspension from all activities on the campus."
